OUR NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The Old Experiment with January and May. Another sensational Divorce in High Official Life.

Washington is never quite without a social sensation with a woman in the case, and this winter has been more prolific of sensations than usual.

A son of an Alabama Senator has figured in one, a Georgia Senator has appeared in another, and now ex-Senator Christiancy, U. S. Minister to Peru, and his young wife are unusually conspicuous in a third.

Everybody remembers the first appearance of the venerable looking ex-senator, who came into the Senate Chamber about four years ago as the representative of reform within the party, and as a supposed moral antithesis of his predecessor.

The appearance of the Judge of the Supreme Court of Michigan in the seat formerly occupied by Mr. Chandler, was hailed by many as a most hopeful political prognostic. His political career has been brief and romantic. Simultaneous with his entrance into the Senate was his registry at a cheap boarding house.

The landlady had a young and pretty daughter. Almost every landlady in Washington has one or two, but this one was remarkably pretty. It was the meeting of the "ruler of the Queen's navy" as Josephine, with a very different sequel. Society was ripe with gossip about the courtship, and the marriage that followed fast upon it.

The landlady's daughter became Mrs. Senator, and her former associates in the Treasury Department told with envy how she had been called upon by Mrs. Secretary of State Fish, and all the ladies in official and diplomatic circles.

The marriage gave the respectable Senator an additional notoriety boom, and for a few weeks he was the cynosure of the Senate galleries, as he walked back and forth in the open space behind the chairs, and forth clapped behind him, a stoop-shouldered, picturesque reply to the question: "Can the old love?"

The outward appearance of marital tolerance were kept up for a year or two. The wedded pair were seldom seen together except at breakfast at the Imperial Hotel, where transient diplomats started at the pretty bride, or made bolder efforts to get acquainted with the old man's grand-daughter. Mrs. Christiancy's closest confidante was a young stepson, a handsome youth of sixteen, who, a few months after the Senator resigned and went as Minister to Peru, Mrs. Christiancy followed him, but in a very short time was seen again in Washington, and now the newspapers are ripe with rumors of divorce suits. Mrs. Christiancy especially has gone into print, having been most free and bounteous of audience with interviews, charging her husband with drunkenness, personal violence, and with the sale of his seat in the Senate to his successor for a money consideration.

The Minister to Peru is expected to arrive in a few days, when it is said he will file a bill for divorce. Mrs. Christiancy says that she expects to apply for a divorce, and there will, in all probability, soon be a suit that will rival the Oliver-Cameron affair in scandalous details. From her statements to reporters, it appears that Mrs. Christiancy will rely chiefly on charges of cruelty and violence, alleged to have taken place during their six months' residence in Peru. These, owing to the great distance, will, of course, be somewhat difficult to prove. Mr. Christiancy's case has not yet been developed. He has not rushed into print, and he, perhaps, too old a lawyer to be nervous about the prejudgment of popular opinion.

THE SPELLING SCHOOL.

BY MRS. ELIZA WALKER.

Did you ever attend a spelling school, in the years of the long ago, when your hearts were young, and light, and whirled in the eddies of snow, and whitened the frozen roads, while the older boys and girls at school, whispered of "four-horse teams"?

A month maybe—perhaps a year—so brief seems the time to-night, since we gathered, with many a gladness, and bounding footsteps light, back to the old school-room door, with its fireplace large and wide, where the "back-log" crackled in cheery "crackles" by its side.

There spelling school of the olden time, the children and youth were there, and, as of old, when the winter time had sprinkled with snow in their hair, there was Mary Blaine with her winsome smile, and the "master" by its side.
